

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

NOTES OF CASES.

---

Entry of Coal Lands.—Defendants were charged with entering into a conspiracy to cause certain persons to make entries of coal lands in their own names, to be paid for by money furnished by a corporation in which defendants were interested and to which the lands were to be conveyed. The United States District Court of Colorado, in United States v. Keitel, 157 Federal Reporter, 396, concluded that "the acts charged did not make out a crime; that the entrymen were qualified as such. They obtained no more land than the acreage limited by the act, and they paid the price fixed by Congress." It was further held that the charge did not relate to matters within the jurisdiction of the Secretary of the Interior as that phrase is used in section 4746 of the Revised Statutes (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3279), providing punishment for the making or presentation of certain false and fraudulent affidavits, declarations, certificates, etc., pertaining to matters within the jurisdiction of the Secretary of the Interior.

---

Discharge of Servant Because of Membership in Labor Organization.—The United States Supreme Court, in Adair v. United States, 28 Supreme Court Reporter, 277, held the act of Congress forbidding employers to threaten employees with loss of employment, or to unjustly discriminate against any employee because of his membership in a labor organization, invalid, as it violated the fifth amendment of the federal Constitution, declaring that no person shall be deprived of liberty or property without due process of law. Such liberty was held to embrace the right to make contracts for the purchase and sale of labor, of which the act in question constituted an unlawful invasion.

---

Compelling Grant of Petition for Quo Warranto.—Relator in mandamus proceedings alleged that a certain person was exercising, without right, the office of treasurer of a corporation; that he had applied to the state's attorney and to the Attorney General for leave to institute quo warranto proceedings, but his request had been refused. The Supreme Court of Illinois decided (People v. Healy, 82 Northwestern Reporter, 599) that mandamus will lie to compel signature of a petition therefor, when the officer to whom application is made abuses the discretion intrusted to him in such matters.

---

Judicial Paternalism.—The trial judge had refused a new trial, saying that he thought that another jury might give even heavier damages. The New York Supreme Court, in Rogers v. Macbeth, 108 New York Supplement, 74, stamped the decision of the trial court as "paternalism foreign to judicial function," and said: "If the defendant chose to hazard another trial, it was not for the court to seek to save him from himself by withholding from him that which the court thought he was entitled to receive."